

NYCPM Receives $200,000 Grant from The Rhett Foundation

ALPHARETTA, GA - November 1, 2017 - Bradley Bakotic, DPM, DO and Louis L. Levine, President and CEO of the New York College of Podiatric Medicine (NYCPM) have announced that the new Rhett Foundation for the Advancement of Podiatric Medicine has made its initial gift, an unrestricted grant of $200,000 to NYCPM.

“We are delighted that, true to its name, Rhett has chosen to support NYCPM with its first gift. We are looking forward to a close working relationship with Dr. Bakotic,” said President Levine.

Louis Levine, Drs. Bradley Bakotic and Michael Trepal

In addition to funding institutions of podiatric medical education, the new foundation will also make educational grants to support University and CME lectures, grants to non-profit organizations, and will fund scientific research; the foundation is currently supporting the development of a textbook in podiatric dermatology.

The Rhett Foundation for the Advancement of Podiatric Medical Education’s principals are Bradley Bakotic, DPM, DO and Joseph “Jody” Hackel, MD. To learn more visit www.rhettfoundation.org.

###